Saratoga Springs Remembers Former Mayor Mia Love for Her Dedicated Service

Saratoga Springs, UT, March 24, 2025 - The City of Saratoga Springs mourns the loss of an early City leader who played a pivotal role in shaping the community's future. Mia Love dedicated 12 years to public service in Saratoga Springs, serving on the City Council from January 1, 2004, to December 31, 2009, and as Mayor from January 1, 2010, to December 31, 2013.

During her time on the City Council, Mia worked closely with residents and fellow council members to establish a planning commission, create a City library, and develop a long-term vision for Saratoga Springs. Following the 2008 Global Financial Crisis, she collaborated with other City Council members and then-Mayor Parker to build a more sustainable tax base, ensuring the city's financial stability.

As Mayor, Mia played a crucial role in expanding the city's economic foundation by working with developers to begin the creation of key commercial centers, including The Crossing shopping center. Her leadership helped strengthen the city's economic resilience and growth.

Mia demonstrated exceptional leadership during the 2012 mudslides and flooding in the Jacob's Ranch neighborhood. In the aftermath of fires and torrential rain, she coordinated efforts with city staff, religious leaders, the State, and volunteer organizations to support cleanup and mitigation efforts, helping affected residents receive the assistance they needed.

Reflecting on her impact, Mayor Jim Miller shared, "I had the privilege of running for City Council while Mia was running for Mayor. Working alongside her to shape Saratoga Springs' future was a privilege. She was a passionate advocate for the residents and the City she loved, representing them with honor and distinction."

Mia Love's dedication and leadership left a lasting legacy in Saratoga Springs. The city honors her service and contributions, remembering her as a key figure in its development.
